

ITLMA Night, Powered by PechaKucha

Written by Michael Hoover

Wednesday, 13 March 2013 20:16 - Last Updated Friday, 19 April 2013 19:45

We have some very exciting news to share! This year, the Independent Time and Labor Management Association (ITLMA) will be hosting a PechaKucha evening during our ITLMA conference and expo in Grapevine on Tuesday, May 7th.

Now, I'm sure you must be asking yourself, "What the heck is PechaKucha?" PechaKucha 20x20 is a simple presentation format where speakers show 20 images, each for 20 seconds. The images advance automatically and presenters talk along to the images. This format, which keeps presentations concise and fast-paced, empowers multiple-speaker to participate.

Now you must be thinking "oh, so that's like a local TED!" A very nice complement, but not quite right. TED is brilliant, but very different to PechaKucha. TED is top down, PechaKucha is bottom up!

Presenters will be providing unique presentations specific to the Time and Labor Management industry. All ITLMA registered attendees are welcome to attend our PechaKucha evening. Cocktails will be served, and the first drink is on us!

ITLMA Board Member James Wendt gave a terrific introduction to the 20x20 format in this introduction the the ITLMA and the PechaKucha format:

Invitation to Present at the ITLMA PechaKucha night at the ITLMA Conference in Grapevine Texas on May 7th from James Wendt on Vimeo .

ITLMA Attendee Registration

ITLMA Members: Register Here

Non-Members: Register Here

Additional show information can be found here .